The Young Ambassadors at Aberdare Community School have been working hard to promote sport, well-being, and leadership across the school. So far, they have each volunteered around 10 hours, supporting tournaments, lunchtime clubs, and helping to run activities for younger pupils.

Their efforts have had a real impact, encouraging more pupils to get active and participate in physical activities. Next term they plan to run sports sessions, help organise sports day and launch their new project, funded by our Dragon's Den panel. They are committed to making a positive difference and inspiring others to enjoy sport and develop their confidence.

"Being a Young Ambassador has been such a great experience. It's helped me grow in confidence and given me the chance to work with younger pupils and help them get involved in sport. I've learned how to be a leader, and it feels amazing to make a difference in our school community." – Ellie
